What makes Polymer Resources different... and better? You do.

This motto is used daily to describe the relationships shared with employees and customers of Polymer Resources, also referred to as family and extended family respectively. Paramount to the life-blood of Polymer Resources, safety and wellbeing are always top priority. As such, the company wellness committee, known for their “PRL Be Well” slogan, came together and created employee wellness packages to inform and provide the tools necessary to stay healthy and safe.

Scott Anderson, President and CEO, held an all employee luncheon last Thursday to discuss the importance of wellness, at the same time handing out the wellness packages which included “PRL Be Well” face masks, hand sanitizers and disinfecting wipes, along with many other wellness necessities. What’s more, employee service awards were given out during the luncheon to celebrate those that have been making a difference at Polymer Resources for many years, if not decades.

Treating customers as extended family is embedded in the organization’s DNA, and the company continuously strives to find ways to create a positive, healthy atmosphere for everyone. To be sure, it is even more important during these uncertain times to stand behind “extended family.” Whether it’s prioritizing healthcare supply needs, expediting orders, strategizing supply and inventory concerns, or just needing an ear to listen to, Polymer Resources is ready help.
